The Dean,
James Hope University

Dear Ma,

REQUEST FOR RECONSIDERATION OF SATURDAY SEMINAR SCHEDULES

I write on behalf of the MBA 1 students of James Hope University to respectfully express our growing concern over the frequency of business seminars scheduled during our Saturday physical lecture periods and the resulting disruption to our academic timetable.

We sincerely appreciate the University's commitment to providing opportunities for students to engage with industry professionals and gain practical insights beyond the classroom. We recognise the value of these seminars and the University's good intentions in organising them.

However, we wish to draw attention to the peculiar structure of our MBA programme, which combines virtual lectures during the week with physical classes on Saturdays. These Saturdays provide our only opportunity for face-to-face interaction with lecturers and fellow students, allowing for more engaging discussions, practical exercises, and other learning experiences that are difficult to replicate virtually.

Furthermore, the current semester is relatively short, leaving limited time for lecturers to cover their course outlines adequately. Unfortunately, the scheduling of business seminars during our Saturday lecture periods has further reduced the already limited time available for physical classes.

Business seminars were held on Saturday, October 3 and October 10, 2026, with another scheduled for Saturday, October 17, 2026. This represents three consecutive Saturdays during which valuable lecture hours have been affected.

Consequently, students are increasingly concerned about the pressure this places on both lecturers and students. Lectures are sometimes rushed, scheduled classes are reduced, and students who make considerable efforts to attend physical classes are left with fewer learning hours than anticipated.

While we acknowledge the importance of these seminars, we respectfully believe that they should complement our academic programme rather than compete with the limited time allocated to physical lectures.

We therefore appeal to the University Management, through your esteemed office, to kindly reconsider the frequency and scheduling of these seminars, particularly during this short semester. We would appreciate an arrangement that preserves our Saturday lecture periods while allowing interested students to benefit from such engagements, perhaps through alternative schedules or virtual participation.

Our appeal is motivated solely by our desire to maximise the learning opportunities available to us and ensure that the academic objectives of the semester are achieved without unnecessary pressure on students and lecturers.

We trust that our concerns will receive your kind consideration and that a suitable arrangement will be made in the collective interest of the students and the University.

Thank you for your understanding and anticipated intervention.
